Three Die When Car Crashes Off Bridge

Youths Going to Dance; Two Others Are Badly Injured

MINDEN, La.—(AP)—Three young men were instantly killed and two others were gravely injured when the car in which they were riding to a dance plunged through a railroad overpass bridge near here Saturday night and crashed 30 feet to the tracks below.

The dead: Homer Brumbley, 18, and Alvin Hartman, 22, both of Hartman, La., and Hucen Foley, 17, of Crutchfield, La. The necks of both Brumbley and Foley were broken when passersby picked them up, and Hartman's spine was crushed.

Malcolm Smith, 17, of Hartman, driver of the car, sustained injuries about the head and Huis Gilbert, 17, of Hartman, was badly cut and bruised. Both were pronounced in a serious condition at a hospital Sunday.

Investigating officers said they were evidently traveling at a high rate of speed when the car struck the bridge railing.

Color of Eyes May Cost Fortune

The "laws" formulated 70 years ago by Mendel, an Austrian monk, regarding the manner in which characteristics are handed down from parents to children, face legal tests in a Chicago court. Brown-eyed George 'Adair' Greene Longley, above, claims to be the son of Albert W. Longley, late Wisconsin millionaire, by his first wife, Mrs. Mary Caroline Longley, is fighting the suit, quoting Mendel's law to the effect that two blue-eyed parents can't have a brown-eyed child. Both the older Longley and his first wife had blue eyes.

Public Lands to States Proposed

Federal Commission Advocates Transfer in Report to Hoover

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Transfer of public land to the states was advocated Monday, with certain exceptions, by the special committee appointed by President Hoover to study the subject.

The recommendation was contained in a report prepared by the committee headed by James R. Garfield, former interior secretary, after several months' investigation. It was made public at the White House.

Areas important for national defense, national parks, forests, reclamation projects, reservoir sites, and bird refuges would be reserved for federal control under the recommendations.

The committee urged that states which subscribed to uniform federal laws regarding conservation of mineral resources also should have mineral rights transferred to them.

Unless a program of uniform state and federal legislation and administration is adopted, the report said, mineral resources should be retained by the federal government.

At present there are 178,979,446 acres of public land principally in the West. Originally the United States owned 1,441,436,160 acres.

Yale Students Welcome 'Nutsy' Fagin to Rooms

HARTFORD, Conn.—(AP)—Yale is going "nutsy" over Nutsy Fagin.

Nutsy is a sleek grey squirrel who, with the coming of winter, forsook his native haunts and established himself as an uninvited guest in Harkness quadrangle.

Since his arrival he has been "making the rounds," spending a few days with each student and meanwhile, laying in a store of nuts in almost every room in the huge dormitory building.

He numbers among his roommates Raymond Guest, polo player, Herschel V. Williams, dramatic critic of the Yale News and others equally prominent.

Nutsy is popular fith everybody except the charwoman, who speak in no uncertain terms of his careless habit of scattering shells.

247 Veterans Have Filed Application in Certificate Loan

Headquarters of Service Officer Swamped With Applicants

EXPECT 1ST CHECKS

First Payment to Hempstead Veterans Expected Next Week

Up to noon Monday $119,113 in loans to former service men have been applied for through the local American Legion office, which is located on Front street, according to Robert Wilson, service officer of the post. This sum represents the total of loans applied for by 247 veterans, according to a check-up. This does not include applications for $25,554 in loans for 51 out-of-town veterans which were filed by local banks.

The first checks for payment of loans applied for, are expected to arrive in Hope this week.

More than half the loans applied for by local veterans, are increases of present bank loans against certificates, it was revealed. Since these are paid through the veterans bureau headquarters in Washington, D. C., it is possible there payment will not be made as promptly as those paid through the Little Rock office.

One Is Killed, Two Injured By Train

J. L. Cobb of Texas Is Victim of Crossing Accident

TEXARKANA—J. L. Cobb, 35-year-old lumberman of Kiblah, Texas, was instantly killed and three other persons were injured when the St. Louis Southwestern railway's crack passenger train, the Lone Star limited, crashed into their car at a crossing 22 miles east of here Sunday afternoon.

The injured were the slain man's wife, his brother, T. P. Cobb, 37, and his wife, all of whom were put aboard the train and rushed to Texarkana. Two East ambulances met the train and took them to the Cotton Belt hospital.

Mrs. J. L. Cobb suffered a scalp wound and cuts and bruises about the body but the others escaped with minor injuries, hospital attaches said.

Little information as to how the accident occurred could be obtained from the injured, the women being in hysterical conditions and the man declaring that he "didn't feel like talking."

The accident occurred about 4:15 p. m. at a crossing known at Josiah, about a mile east of Garland City. The four were returning to their homes in Kiblah after spending the day at Magnolia, it was said.

J. L. Cobb was driving and apparently failed to see the fast train bearing down upon them as he drove over the crossing. The car was struck and dragged more than 100 yards down the track. It was demolished. The driver of the automobile died instantly, presumably from a blow on the head, although his chest also was crushed.

The Cobb brothers were both employees of the W. E. Clark Lumber company at Kiblah. Clark was notified of the accident and said that he would arrive here shortly to make funeral arrangements for the slain man.

The accident was the second to occur on the St. Louis Southwestern lines near here within the last few days, Nat Martin, prominent Prescott real estate man, having been instantly killed last Tuesday when the car in which he was riding with A. M. Denman and J. M. Stripling was struck by passenger train No. 1 at a crossing near Waldo, Ark., 50 miles east of Texarkana.

Denman and Stripling are recovering at the Cotton Belt hospital.

Bank Transfers Millions Without Hindrance

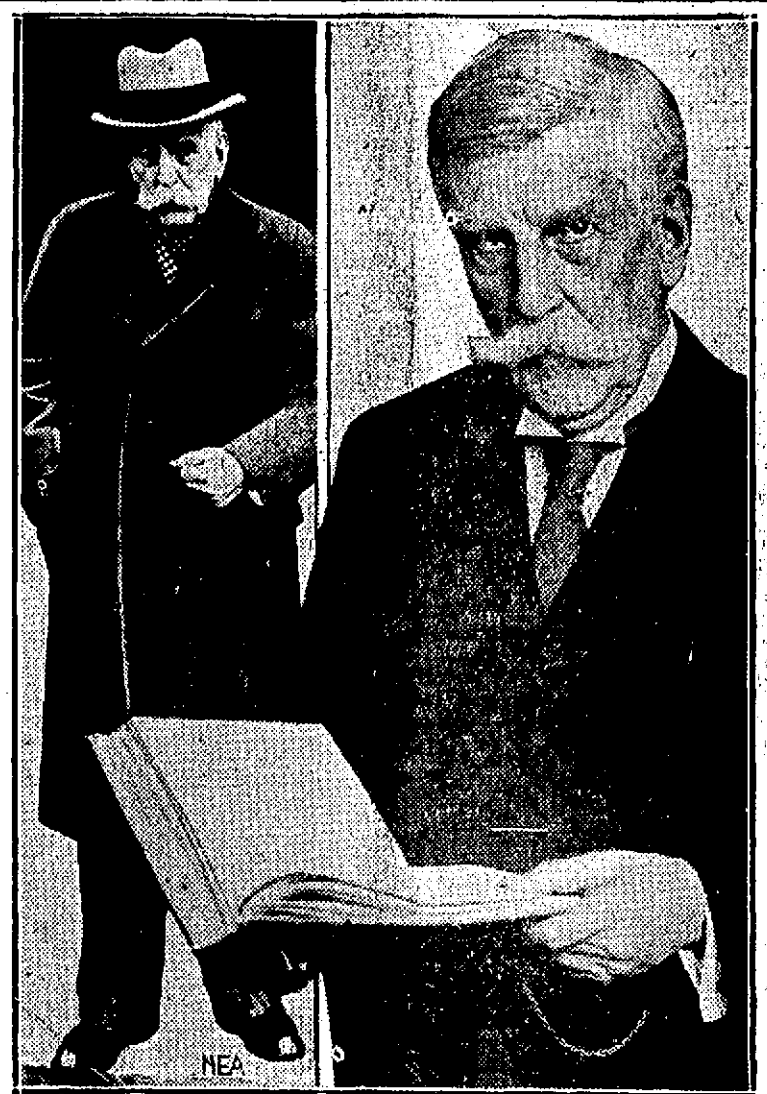

TORONTO, Ont.—(AP)—Officers of the Canadian Bank of Commerce can breathe easier, now that the bank's millions of dollars worth of gold bullion, cash, securities, and valuable contents of safety deposits vaults have been stored away in the deep-hidden cellars of its new main office.

With completion of the new 34-story bank and office building, bank officials made elaborate plans for the transfer of the bank's treasure.

The moving took place recently, but so unobtrusively that few persons except those directly connected with the transfer knew of it.

Only six city police aided bank guards and armored money truck crews in protecting the fortune on the several "moving days."

Local Club Observes National B. & P. W. Week

Radio Programs, in Which Many of the National Leaders of Business and Professional Womens Work Will Take Part Are Scheduled For Every Day of the Week

The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs of the United States under whose auspices National Business Women's Week is to be observed March 8 to 14, is the largest organization of business and professional women in the world. It numbers approximately 60,000 members and has approximately 1250 local clubs scattered through the 48 states, with branches in Alaska and the Hawaiian islands.

Organized in 1919 at St. Louis, Mo., the federation has grown rapidly both in numbers and in influence, until the majority of the women in the United States who hold positions of executive importance have become members.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the President of the United States; Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, wife of the ex-president; seven of the eight women in the retiring Congress, Judge Florence E. Allen, only woman Supreme Court Justice in the world; Judge Nellie Taylor Ross, first of our women justices; Mrs. Bertha K. Landes, who was the first woman to be mayor of a large American city; Mary Anderson, head of the Women's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor and prominent in the U. S. government service; Dr. Lillian M. Gilberth, who is in the forefront of the engineering profession in the United States—these are a few of the outstanding members who have been on its roster.

The organization is non-partisan, non-sectarian, self-governing and self-supporting. It has raised and spent during the last 12 years approximately $1,000,000, which has been invested in the development of the American business woman, physically, mentally and morally.

Its well rounded program seeks for the business woman finer health standards, a greater degree of intellectual growth, a sounder and saner appraisal of her own potentialities and handicaps, a serene and courageous approach to business problems.

Thorn Utility Tax Bill Goes to Senate After Sharp Debate

Author of Measure and Toney of Jefferson Argue on Motion

TABLE MOVIE BILL

Proposal to Legalize Sunday Motion Pictures Tabled

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—An unsuccessful move by Thorn utility tax bill opponents to prevent its transmission to the senate precipitated a sharp debate in the house Monday with Representative Toney of Jefferson county charging that Representative Thorn of Poinsett county represented the school bond holders in New York.

Thorn denied this and countered with the assertion that Toney was the personal representative of Harvey Couch, utility magnate.

Thorn's motion to have the bill immediately transmitted to the senate was favored by a vote of 49 to 23.

The house later tabled, by a vote of 46 to 37 a bill by representative Raney of Woodruff county to legalize Sunday motion pictures in the State of Arkansas.

Camp Director Scores 'Hand-Me-Down Morals'

HARTFORD, Conn.—(AP)—Youth needs to be freed of "hand-me-down morals" and be given a chance to sin and find out for himself the results of sin, Ralph C. Hill, president of the Camp Directors' Association, declared in an address at the Hartley-Salmon clinic here.

"The boy who never wants to fool with a cigarette is really, I believe, a problem boy," he said. "Every normal boy should feel the driving urge to try things for himself, and it is up to parents to find the reason for that urge."

One difficulty, Hill said, was that the normal boy "is all scheduled up and has no time to be the barbarian he ought to be for atime."

Judge Witt Hurt In Auto Accident

Niece Also Suffers Injuries in Wreck on Highway No. 70

HOT SPRINGS—Circuit Judge Earl Witt of Hot Springs and his niece, Miss Pauline Witt, aged 18, are in the Leo N. Levi hospital suffering from injuries received late Sunday afternoon, 15 miles out of Hot Springs on highway 70. Their car was forced off the road, ran into an embankment and then crashed into the home of a farmer.

Both Judge Witt and Miss Witt have broken noses, several teeth knocked out and numerous cuts on the face and lips. At the hospital it was reported they are not in a serious condition.

Mrs. Witt was driving. She said that a large car, which bore either a Texas or Oklahoma license, came up behind them as they were returning to Hot Springs and crowded her car. Mrs. Witt said she became frightened and lost control of the car, which was badly damaged.

The other car did not stop but continued on toward Hot Springs. Occupants of another car brought Judge and Mrs. Witt almost to Hot Springs when the Gross ambulance met the car and rushed them to the hospital, where Mrs. Witt attends the Training School for Nurses. Mrs. Witt was not injured and was able to go to her home.

Lea Declares He Is Not Guilty of Charges Against Him

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—(AP)—Colonel Luke Lea, publisher, Rogers Caldwell, financier and J. B. Ramsey, were indicted Saturday in Federal District court at Greenville, Tenn., on charges of violating the Federal Banking laws in transactions with the closed Holston Union National Bank at Knoxville. Copias have been sent here for service on Lea and Caldwell.

Officials expected the return of Ramsey from Jacksonville, Florida, to accept service.

Two indictments were returned against each defendant, one charging conspiracy to violate the National banking laws and the other charged two specific violations of the Federal Banking laws by Ramsey, aided and abetted by Caldwell and Lea.

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—(AP)—Declaring innocence of any law violation, Colonel Luke Lea said Monday he will await with confidence an early and complete vindication of charges made against him by the Federal grand jury at Greenville, Saturday.

Tragic Position of Our U. S. Cotton

Should Spend Money in Building Overseas Markets For Crops

A New York Cotton Exchange circular reports world consumption of American cotton for the six months from August 1, 1930 to January 31, 1931, as 5,496,000 bales, as against 7,050,000 bales during the same period last year, according to the Cotton Digest. The largest decrease in consumption of American cotton occurred in England, where the decline was over half.

Meanwhile, Indian cotton is passing into consumption at so rapid a rate that the Indian government is actually discussing the wisdom of imposing an export tax on cotton shipped out of India.

World consumption of American in 1929-30 decreased 2,053,000 bales, while world consumption of growths other than American increased 1,400,000 bales.

World consumption of American in 1928-29 was 15,000,000 bales; in 1929-30, it was 13,000,000 bales; in 1930-31, estimated world consumption of American is 11,000,000 bales.

While the Federal Farm Board is not responsible for Europe's desire to be independent of American cotton, it is responsible for changing that desire into acute action by rendering American cotton distinctly unpopular abroad.

American cotton producers are now losing their export markets by wholesale.

Even in good times, American mills cannot consume over half the normal production of American cotton.

If America is to lose its export market for cotton, half the normal production of cotton will be enough. One million farmers can produce that quantity. What will become of the other million cotton farmers at present employment?

One economist says: "The welfare of our country requires that we spend our money and time in building up overseas markets for our surplus, not in destroying those markets."

Political Realignment

THE pending conference of progressives in Washington may turn out to be one of the most important political developments of the decade. Certainly it is one of the most interesting.

It is interesting, not as an exposition of the power of the progressive group in Congress, nor as the formulation of a platform by these groups, but because it may help materially to bring about the long waited realignment of the major political parties.

The major parties have become very similar during the past decade or so. Unless the prohibition issue provides a sharp line of demarcation between them during the next presidential campaign, they will presumably offer programs that do not differ very greatly, and the American voter will have simply a choice between two candidates and not between two widely divergent schools of thought.

This is hardly healthful. It does not lead to any clear-cut decision on public questions. It does not provide earnest debates on the important issues of the day. It tends, in fact, to reduce all campaigns simply to a struggle for power by two rival groups.

How far the progressive conference will go in bringing such a realignment near is, of course, an open question. The important thing about it is that it is a bi-partisan conference. If its members can agree on a definite program for the next session of Congress—regardless of whether such a program be good, bad or indifferent—the consequences should be salutary.

The absurdity of the present bi-party lineup is apparent at a glance. Senator Norris of Nebraska and Senator Moses of New Hampshire are both Republicans—and are as far apart as the poles on almost every public issue. Senator La Follette of Wisconsin is a Republican; so is Speaker Nicholas Longworth of the House of Representatives. President Hoover is a Republican—and so is Senator Borah of Idaho.

It is the same on the other side. John J. Raskob is a Democrat; and so is Senator Robinson of Arkansas. Senator Wagner of New York and Senator Harris of Mississippi are both Democrats. The dry Carter Glass of Virginia and the wet Robert Bulkley of Ohio belong to the same party.

The party label, thus, means little. If a bi-partisan movement, whether progressive or conservative, can serve to draw like-minded men into separate groups we shall be a great deal better off.

Not Kidding Anybody

IN passing sentence of another two or more years of virtual idleness upon the huge investment which the American people have made in the Muscle Shoals hydro-electric and nitrate plants Herbert Hoover professed to see in the Norris plan some kind of a menace to our nation.

"hesitate to contemplate," said the president in his veto message, "the future of our institutions, of our government, and of our country if the preoccupation of its officials is to be no longer the promotion of justice and equal opportunities, but is to be devoted to barter in markets. That is not liberalism; it is degeneration."

The president is not kidding anybody. He is opposed to jeopardizing private profits by putting the government into competition with private capital, and would rather see the public's investment at Muscle Shoals rot than to adopt the course advocated by Senator Norris. But why doesn't he say so, instead of talking rot about "preoccupation of officials" with the "promotion of justice and equal opportunities"? Why didn't he think of that when the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill was before him? The fact of the matter is that the president of these United States is very much concerned about "justice and equal opportunities" for some of the people, but is exceedingly indifferent to the fate of a whole lot of others. —Blytheville Courier News.

Manners Among Thieves

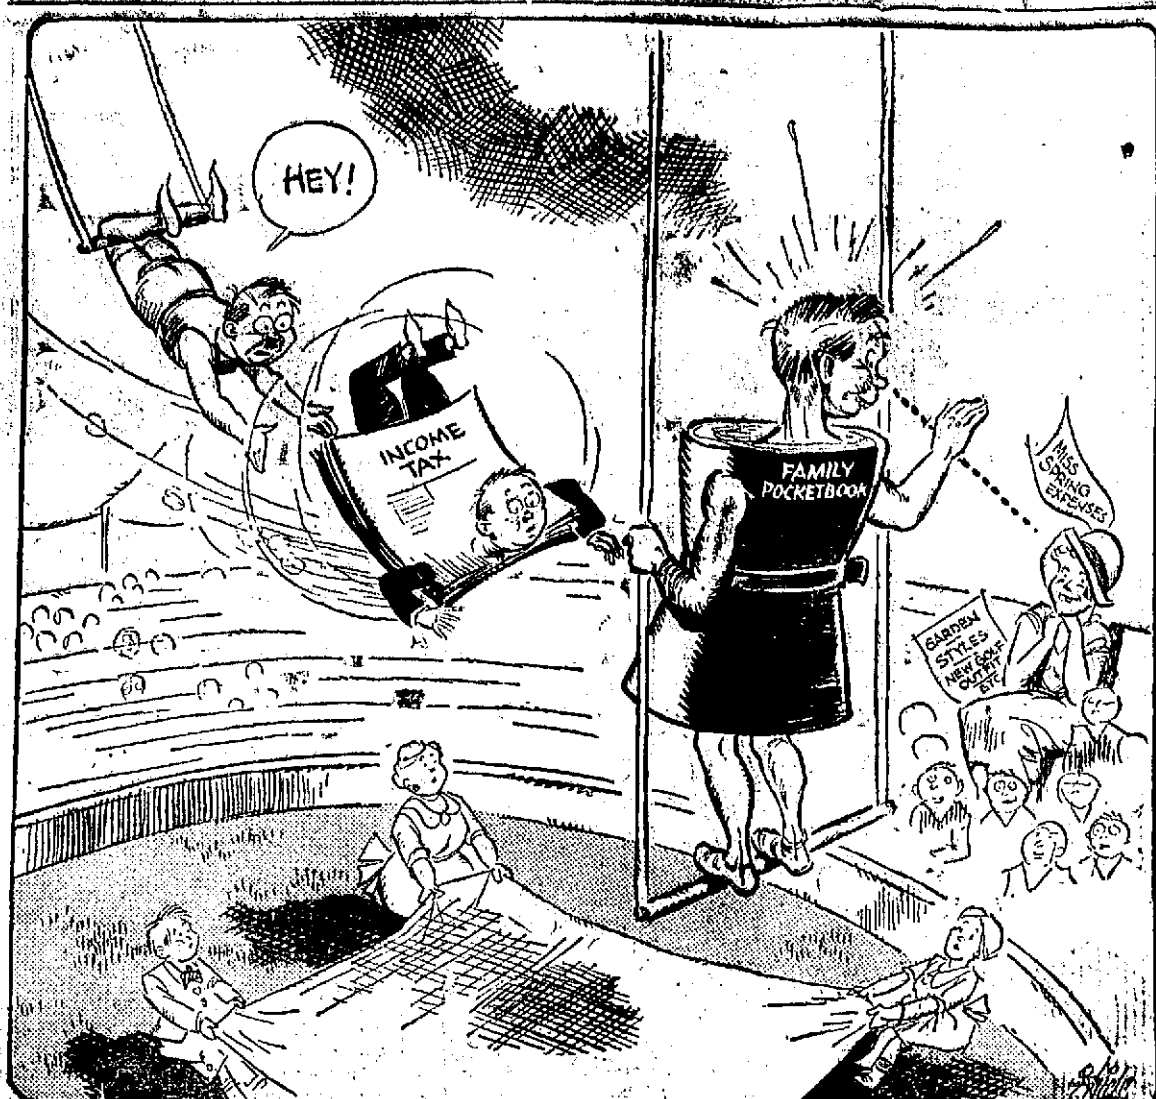

THERE are manners even among thieves, it appears. Mrs. Anna Nicholas, of Washington, D. C., was handed back the money and jewels which a man had taken from her, when the man recognized her as someone he knew. Evidently it wasn't in his code to rob people whose lives came in contact with his. So long as he didn't know the party from whom he was taking property he had an impersonal attitude about it.

This spirit is found in larger forms of banditry. Swindlers have been known to risk the money entrusted to them by thousands of unknown victims. The money was something impersonal. If they had known the sacrifices and struggles back of each fraud they might have been more careful.

The human touch, to which moralists and teachers and preachers refer continuously, becomes a money saver sometimes.—Blytheville Courier News.

Farmer Picks Old Island As Home

Swedish Prince to Live There After Marriage to Commoner

BERLIN—(U.P.)—In the upper arm of Lake Constance just above Meerburg, lies the peaceful island of Mainau, where Prince Leinart of Sweden has announced his intention of turning farmer and, under the Swedish royal family name of Bernadotte, of working out his future after his marriage with Miss Karin Nissvandt.

The Prince inherited the island estate of several hundred acres from his grandmother, the late Queen of Sweden, Princess of Baden. The House of Baden got it from Napoleon in 1805. It was one of the favorite retreats of Kaiser Wilhelm I.

The old German Order of Holy Knights first took possession of the spot in the 13th century, uprooted the gloomy wooded patches and planted linden trees, firs and cedars. Successive owners have added to the landscape through the centuries, but the island still stands today, a quiet retreat, a beauty spot from the Middle Ages, amidst the lively atmosphere of Lake Constance resort life.

Toward Ueberlinger, the sandstone banks of Mainau Island drop sharply to the lake, shaded by the lindens and oaks, through which the sturdy ramparts of the old defense still wind, with their watchtowers and the secret steps down to the water's edge.

The castle stands in the center of a park of palms and cypresses, flanked by rose terraces. Fir and pine trees form cool, quiet lanes winding down to the water's edge. A veritable flood of terraced roses add their color against the dark sides of the old ramparts. Orange, lemon and banana trees bloom in the mild southern sun, and wine terraces stretch down toward the beach on the western side. A narrow staircase here leads up to a watch tower high over the lake looking toward Linz and the Swiss Alps.

The castle contains many of the things. Bodelins and paintings, carved chests and cupboards, hand-carved ceiling of the main assembly hall still remains. Here the chiefs of the Holy Order met to plan their campaigns, and, perhaps, to divide their spoils. Their names can still be read on the stones of the crypt in the castle church.

"Lightnin'" Was Real Character

LINCOLN, Neb.—(U.P.)—"Lightnin'" Bill Jones, beloved American character, and recently portrayed by Will Rogers in the talkies, was real.

The Nebraska state department of publicity has learned that "Lightnin'" actually lived and about 20 years ago lived at Brownville, Nebraska. His name was William Wallace Kennedy, and H. S. Davis, Napa, California banker, has revealed an account of the character as he actually existed.

Kennedy left Nebraska in the early nineties and located at Napa. He became jailer and guard of a chain gang there, the gang doing general duties about the town. Kennedy was a good story teller. The county clerk at Napa wrote up the yarns and had them published in the local paper, Frank Bacon, editor of the paper, derived the character "Lightnin'" from the stories.

Is for "Wall" Kennedy, formerly of Brownville, Nebraska, who told the stories of driving bees across the plains.

Death Her Escape From "Shame"

"I've decided to give up... as I write this I'm turning on the gas"... That was the last entry in the diary of 16-year-old Bonita Bischoff, above. Unable to bear revelations of the checkered past of her mother, Vivian Gordon, slain New York art model, the girl committed suicide at the home of her father in Audubon, N. J. She had feared being "talked about" as the daughter of the woman for whose murder hundreds of police were searching throughout the east.

Turkish Students Forced to Become Linguists

ISTANBUL.—(U.P.)—The compulsory teaching of English and German languages in all secondary schools has been ordered by the Turkish Ministry of Instruction.
The object of the measure is to give the educated classes a "northern education" as opposed to the "southern education" which is believed to be imparted by learning French. Hitherto, French has been the dominant language in Turkey and the Near East generally.
Meanwhile, 270,000 adults, including 90,000 women are still being instructed in reading and writing the new Turkish script.

Medieval Art Exhibition to Be Opened March 16

PHILADELPHIA.—(U.P.)—A display of medieval art, which is said to excel anything previously attempted, will be opened in the Art Museum on the Parkway, March 16.
The exhibition will include Romanesque and Gothic sections, together with the recently opened early American and Georgian displays.
The major exhibit will include a Romanesque cloister and the facade of an abbey from Burgundy; an almoner's chapel of the Commandery of the Knights of St. Anthony from Aumoniere, near Langres; a Venetian Gothic bedroom from the Palazzo Soranzo and several other Gothic rooms.

Beautification Program For U. S. Highways

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—(U.P.)—Beautification of the roads of the country was one of the main points of discussion at the recent meeting of the Association of Highway Officials of the North Atlantic states.
The example of Cape May county, N. J., was cited to show what can be done in improving a highway when the entire resources of the county are placed behind the activities of the citizens.

With more than 100 detectives seeking to track down the unknown murderer of Vivian Gordon (left) in New York, authorities revealed the slain former art model as a "love racketeer" who had blackmailed many wealthy men. District Attorney Charles B. McLaughlin (upper right), friend and former room-mate of Miss Gordon, who came from Erie, Pa., to submit to questioning, was closely guarded when she told police that she feared for her own life. Below, left to right, are John E. C. Bischoff, former husband of the murdered woman, who denied having "framed" her in 1923 on a vice charge; and Samuel Cohen, formerly her bodyguard, and John A. Radcliffe, her lawyer, who were held as witnesses when notations in Miss Gordon's diary revealed her fear of death at their hands.

He Who Laughs Last

Who Wouldn't Be Crazy to Be Presented on Friday, March 20

The Junior class of Hope High school are beginning on the second week of practice on their play, "Who Wouldn't Be Crazy."
The Juniors under the sponsorship of Miss Reid and Mrs. Roy Stephenson, have selected for their play, a snappy three-act comedy, written by Katherine Kavanaugh. The play is under the able direction of Miss Martha Stuart and will be presented in the auditorium of the city hall on March 20.
This extraordinarily gay farce is as new and smart and frivolous as the latest Paris hat and as old in its appeal as love and laughter. "Speedy" Marshall, just out of college, with high-powered cars and airplanes to play with, while evading a traffic cop, gets himself interned in an insane asylum and his father decides to let him stay there and be cured of his speed mania. He meets there the beautiful Lois Meredith, whom he has tagged all over Europe, and also a group of society girls, rehearsing a play for the inmates—in fact the place is gay with social activities. Then events takes a most unexpected turn—Speedy turns them—and exciting action follows fast and furious. A thrilling jewel robbery and a kidnapping are included.
The parts are excellent in their distribution and appeal—the lovely, spirited Lois; the appealing Evelyn; three mischievous debs; Speedy's father; Pender, a "chocolate colored angel"; the head nurse; inmates one and two, apparently eccentric, hugely funny and not a little mysterious, especially when no one else is around; Pluribus, a colored boy in love with Pender; and how! Reggie—well, he's Reggie; and McCafferty, the hard-boiled traffic cop is one of the finest. The humor, brilliant dialogue and heart stirring situations of this play will make it the talk of the town. Everyone's crazy about it and who wouldn't be?

TUT, TUT, TUFFY!
 World comes to me that young Gerald Ambrose (Tuffy) Griffith, in the heat of a recent argument, forgot the traits of his name that he offered to waive his chance of obtaining a fee, purse for the mere privilege of engaging in a brawl of the common, everyday, schoolyard type.

Cavalry heads prevailed upon the impetuous Tuffy One, however, and words temporarily soothed his injured vanity, and he soon was prevailed upon to sign a contract for the settlement of his grievances in the squared arena at a flat guarantee of $25,000 and with the whole of Chicago, or as much of it as will come to the Chicago Stadium, on hand, to view the proceedings.

It seems that Tuffy grew irked at some words sneeringly spoken by King Levinsky, the former, fish vender and forthwith volunteered to "bear down heavily" on the King's warped features. Obviously, then, it was Levinsky who signed the other half of the contract to meet Griffiths in the March 6 show at the Chicago Stadium.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

BASKETBALL is 40 years old this winter.

Dr. Naismith, the Kansas professor, invented it at Springfield, Mass., in 1891.

The first intercollegiate game was played a year later, in old Morgan gym on the campus of Mount Union College, Alliance, O.

The Mounts seem to know what it's all about, for they've won 12 straight this season.

Sullivan's gym in New York almost daily sees a young man who seems to be working on a comeback, and at 23, his name is Al Singer.

Al intended his retirement to be permanent but after a long motor tour, and a rest he still thinks he might fight a little.

This department's advice to Singer would be to route his comeback on the streets that won't cross Cuzumotti, Suarez, Berg, King Tut or Billy Petrolle.

Previous Advances Flopped

FOR weeks promoters of the Windy City had sought to match the two but Jack O'Keefe, manager of the Tough One, demanded a 40 percent privilege, on top of a $25,000 guarantee. Floored by these demands, the promoters dropped the negotiations.

It must have been a trick of fate, then, that sent Tuffy into the same loop gym where the King had just completed a workout.

"When are you going to quit running away and give me a fight?" asked Levinsky. A handful of gymnasium frequenters hovered near.

"We can fight right here and now as far as I'm concerned," remarked Tuffy.

Levinsky reminded Griffiths that such a procedure would be foolish. He then turned on his heels and walked out of the gym, leaving Tuffy standing there, his Irish mounting higher and higher at the apparent snubbing.

Both fighters were beaten in their last appearances. Griffiths by Young Strubling and Jimmy Slattery, but this apparently doesn't keep Chicago fans from viewing the impending clash as a natural. They expect to see one of those rare encounters between rivals whose friendship has turned to bitter hatred.

There have been occasions when hatred made a good fight but for the most part the heat dies down in the ring. Grudge fights have a habit of doing just that.

Mistaken For Tramp, Joinerville Man Shot

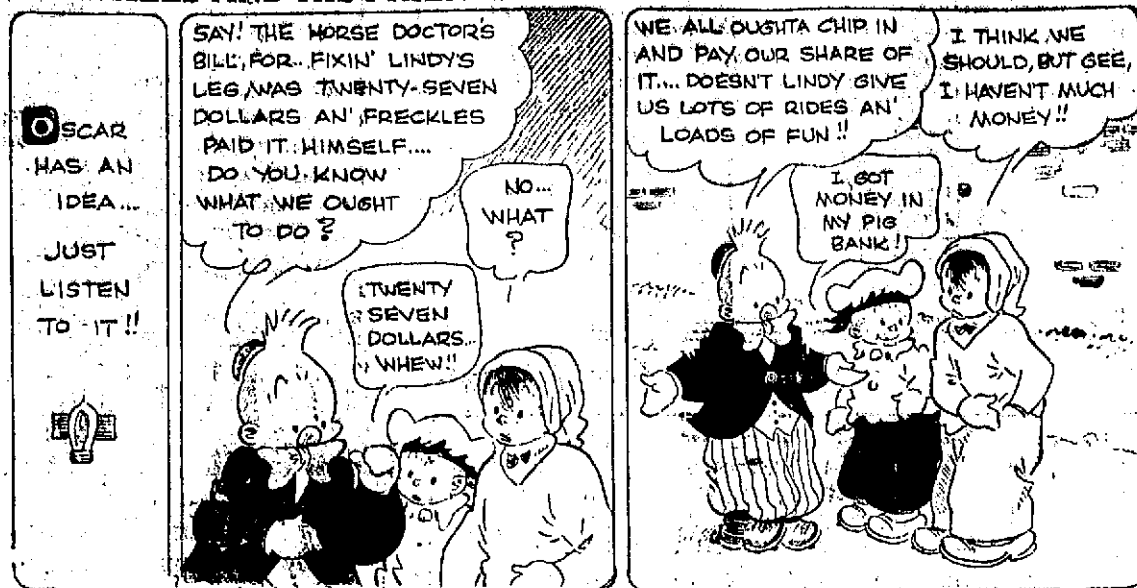

HENDERSON, Texas.—(P)—Mistaken for a tramp when he went to a junk yard Thursday night for automobile parts, R. L. Lynn, 29, Joinerville garage owner, was shot and seriously wounded. Lynn, exonerated Tapper of all blame and no charge was filed against Tapper.

Coolidge Uses Crackers as Chaser for Nightcap

NORTHAMPTON, Mass.—(U.P.)—Calvin Coolidge is fond of his hot chocolate nightcap with crackers and an apple for a chaser, according to Bruce Barton in the American Magazine.

Barton, a recent week-end guest at the Coolidge home, got a close-up of the former president's nightly recreation.

According to Barton, Mr. Coolidge prepared the chocolate nightcap himself with great care and, after carrying it into the living room, drank it, munching away at crackers in the meantime. The apple topped off the ex-president's digestion.

Barton said that he had never seen Mr. Coolidge so relaxed and cheerful and that his conversation was punctuated with frequent laughs.

Mah Jong Game Ends in $50,000 Suit

SAN FRANCISCO.—(U.P.)—Bridge games have been known to lead to divorce, baseball games have ended in free-for-all fights, but now, for possibly the first time on record, a mah jong game has resulted in the filing of a $50,000 damage suit.

W. W. Adams is being sued for $50,000 actual and punitive damages by a fellow broker, Kenneth Watson, who charges that in a fistie battle over a disputed point during an after lunch mah jong game, Adams struck him on the head, permanently injuring him.

Adams admitted the quarrel but denies the fist fight.

No. 3

In a Series appearing in this newspaper

THIS is no year to take chances. If you are tempted to use "any old" fertilizer because it costs less, don't do it! Most of all, your crops need nitrogen—natural nitrogen—and that means Chilean Nitrate. I've arranged for a big supply of Chilean Nitrate in new 100 lb. bags. It's cheaper than it has been for years. Better get your order in now, so you won't be sorry later on.

Your Fertilizer Dealer

CHILEAN NITRATE is original "Soda"—the natural nitrogen fertilizer that has been used for a hundred years in the South with best results. It increases yield and quality of every crop you grow. It's indispensable as a side or top dressing to insure against loss. And when you order your fertilizer, be sure to say Chilean Nitrate to your dealer. That one word, "Chilean," is your protection and your dealer's too. Chilean means the real thing—the nitrate all crop champions use. Remember the two kinds—Original Chilean (Crystalline) and Champion Brand (Granulated) both natural nitrate.

MOTHER ADVISED TAKING CARDUI

Lady Who Had Been In Bad Health Took Cardui And Was Benefited.

Birmingham, Ala.—When in a run-down condition of health some time ago, Mrs. W. F. Siveley, 5412 Seventh Avenue, South, this city, took Cardui, with the resulting benefit which she describes below.

"About a year ago, my health was not good," writes Mrs. Siveley. "I felt weak and tired, and had pains in my back. I lost weight."

"I knew by these symptoms I needed something to build me up. My mother advised me to try Cardui, which I did. I found it was what I needed, for it built me up. The pain in my back stopped, and I felt better and stronger than I had in some time."

"I took about seven bottles of Cardui in all, and now I am feeling just fine and have been since taking Cardui."

"Thousands of other women have written to say that Cardui has proved of valuable assistance to them in building up their health. Cardui is a purely vegetable medicinal compound, and contains nothing harmful or injurious."

MAD MARRIAGE

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

Author of "HEART HUNGRY" etc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Gypsy McRide, 19-year-old typist, goes to meet the boat which is bringing ALAN CROSBY home from a year and a half of study in Paris. The couple are not engaged but there is an understanding between them. On the pier the girl sees a beautiful woman whom Crosby identifies as Mrs. Langley, a casual ally acquaintance.

The couple drive to Mrs. Langley's rooming house where a celebration honoring the young artist is interrupted when Crosby makes a phone call and announces a business engagement. He goes to Mrs. Langley's lavatory and meets her. Two nights later Crosby breaks a dinner engagement with Gypsy, explaining he is spending the evening with business associates. Gypsy goes to the theater alone and encounters Crosby and Mrs. Langley in the after-theater crowd.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER V

THERE was no time for Crosby to recover his composure. His muttered "Good evening!" was interrupted by Gypsy's tense, surprised cry:

"Why, Alan Crosby—you told me you were going to work tonight!"

Her voice was clearly audible above the street's noise. It had the dramatic quality which promises excitement. Men and women turned to see who was speaking.

Mrs. Langley took the young man's arm. "Come, Alan," she said softly. "This is outrageous!"

"The words were a command," Mrs. Langley did not look at Gypsy. Her frigid gaze refused to recognize the girl's presence.

Crosby, though he felt the hand on his arm, seemed about to speak when Gypsy again interrupted.

"I understand a lot of things now!" she snapped, "but, oh, Alan—you might have told the truth! You might have—"

From somewhere in the crowd a man's voice, half-drunken, rose above the girls. "Oh, oh! Papa's steppin' out!" the voice cried.

Another joined in: "Don't let him get away with it, baby. Soak him on the jaw!"

EACH sally was followed by guttural yells. For the first time Gypsy turned her head. She saw the circle which had gathered about herself, Crosby and the beautiful stranger.

It was terrifying. At that instant when it seemed the whole world was a sea of eyes staring at her and escape was impossible Mrs. Langley spoke. She addressed Crosby.

"You'd better take your friend home," she said softly. "Here's my car. Good night!"

She turned and the liveried theater attendant, who had gone from crimson to pale lavender trying to check the commotion, helped her into the motor car which had drawn to the curb. Mrs. Langley's own fair fingers closed the door with a resounding thump.

Gypsy looked at Crosby.

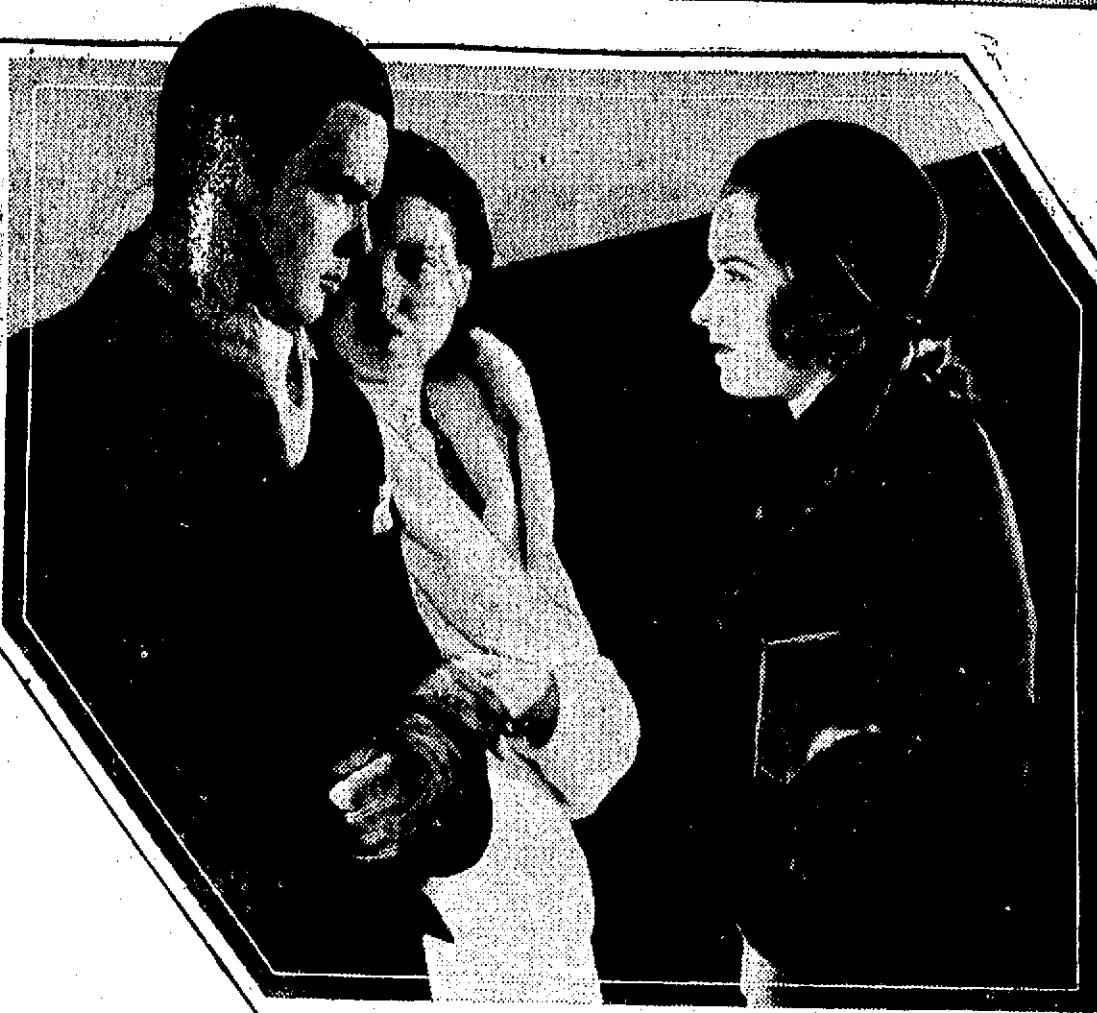

"Here!" he said, slipping a bill into the starter's hand: "Help me out of this. Get me a cab!"

How it could have been done so quickly must remain a mystery. From the honking din of vehicles a taxicab approached. Crosby grabbed the girl's arm and pushed her forward.

"Get in!" he ordered.

Gypsy could not have held back even if she had wanted to. She sank into the far corner of the cab, grateful for the darkness. Crosby followed. The door shut after them and the taxi lunged forward.

It could not go far. Before and behind them the street was jammed. Now that the center of interest had been removed the crowd on the sidewalk straggled forward again. Mingled with relief was Gypsy McRide's consciousness of Alan's anger, of what she had done.

"Why, Alan Crosby—you told me you were going to work tonight!"

He was sitting at the far side of the seat. His eyes were fixed straight ahead; his face was pale. She knew he was furious. Only once before had Gypsy seen him look like that. The time they had been walking on the East Side and found a man beating a cringing fox terrier.

Alan had interfered and the affair had ended in police court. Outstanding in Gypsy's memory of the episode had remained the vision of Alan's blazing dark eyes and white face.

Now he was like that again. She was sure he knew that she was watching him but still he did not speak. Gypsy moved uncomfortably. She stared out the cab window.

To regret the incident before the theater was one thing. Repentance was another, and Gypsy's indignation still blazed. She tapped one foot angrily against the cab door.

Why didn't he explain? Why didn't he say something? The whole affair was Crosby's fault.

THE little foot tapped faster.

All right—if Alan wouldn't speak she'd show him! Gypsy put one hand on the cab door and tried to open it. She wouldn't ride in his old cab; she'd take the subway.

The door opened. Gypsy made a quick movement and felt a vise-like grip on her arm.

"You stay in here!" Crosby commanded. "You stay in this cab!"

"I'd like to know why!"

"Because you're going to—that's why. What do you want to do? Get the plot squad out? I should think you've done about enough for one night."

"You let me alone, Alan Crosby! A fine one you are to tell me what to do. I'll do as I please!"

"We'll see about that!" Crosby jammed the door shut again. At the same instant the cab started forward.

WHEN at last they reached the rooming house Gypsy alighted. Without a backward glance she ran up the steps to the entrance. By the time Crosby had paid the driver and received his change the girl had entered the house and was out of sight.

She heard him coming up the stairs. Gypsy, in her own room one floor above, leaned against the door and listened to the slow, familiar footsteps as they neared the third floor landing. There was a pause. Gypsy listened, heard the door open and close, and then the house was still again. There was nothing but the half-heard, muffled dance tune from the Jenkins' second floor radio.

She waited a little longer. The radio was whining a morose and time-worn tune. Gypsy recalled the title, "Can't We Be Friends?" One of those songs of blighted love. Suddenly she forgot she hated Alan Crosby and never wanted to see his face again. Tears blinded her. She made her way to the bed, sank upon it and hid her face in the pillows.

AT 10 o'clock the following morning Clara Howard, looking blond and fragile in a new blue crepe, paused negligently beside Gypsy's desk.

"Lend me your nail file, will you, darling?" she asked sweetly.

Gypsy opened her purse, took out the file and handed it to her.

"Why, Gypsy!" the other girl exclaimed. "What in the world is the matter? You're looking positively frightful. Aren't you well?"

"I'm all right."

"But those circles under your eyes—and you're so pale!"

"I'm all right," Gypsy repeated. "Didn't sleep very well—that's all."

Fate chose that precise instant for Elizabeth Tuttle to appear in the doorway. "Miss McBride," the office executive spoke crisply, "when you can leave your work will you come into this office please?"

Harry Thaw In Court Again

It was in a cheerful mood, joking with court attaches and spectators, that Harry K. Thaw appeared at the re-trial by New York of the suit filed against him by Marcia Estardus, who accused him of beating her with a hairbrush at a party three years ago. The millionaire play-boy is shown in court, at left, with a girl companion who told inquiring reporters her name was "Mary Dimple." Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NRA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON.—No game has ever fascinated a community to the extent that the pastime of doing tricks with figures has beguiled this, the seat of government.

The game is often played with millions of dollars and sometimes with hundreds of millions. Everybody goes in for it—the White House, the treasury, the Department of Labor, Congress, the Red Cross and others.

The adroitness which the people's servants in Washington have acquired has been demonstrated in the handling of estimates as to the cost of bonus bills, estimating the number of employed, explaining how much the Red Cross had for relief and how much it would need, guessing at the size of treasury deficits, estimating the number of American Communists and what not.

Of course, there is a variation of the sport in which the players know exactly the right answers and deliberately twist figures when an accurate result has already been obtained. But the real zest is found in reaching results which cannot positively be proved wrong despite the absence of any good base of computation and which will be a big aid to somebody's propaganda.

Mellon Is Expert Estimator

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has become such an accomplished player, through 10 years of practice, that every time he estimates anything these days he finds even the Republicans laughing at him. But Mellon is only one among many who have been doing tricks with figures on the possible cost of extending loans on soldier bonus certificates.

Mr. Mellon, however, said that the bill to lend veterans money up to 50 per cent of the face value of their certificates would establish a potential "liability" of about $1,700,000,000. It sounded like a lot of money.

The chance was there to make the cost appear perhaps more than twice what it was likely to be and opponents of the measure made the most of that. Of course, the facts are that the only logical way to estimate the probable extent of new veterans loans is to study what the veterans have done with their loan privileges in the past and that there is no possibility of accurate estimate.

Only 300 Million Now Out

Up to now, their certificates have had a loan value of about $765,000,000 and little more than $300,000,000 of that has actually been borrowed. If veterans borrow up to 50 per cent in the same proportion that they have borrowed up to 22 1/2 per cent they would use somewhere around $765,000,000 of the new loan value, of which about $300,000,000 is already outstanding in loans.

This, unless a considerable number of veterans begin to borrow on their certificates for the first time after previously ignoring the loan privilege, the amount of new money needed is unlikely to run over half a billion dollars. Estimates of the new money needed, of course, have run from $300,000,000 to a billion.

Congress also has shown its adeptness in making figures do tricks. It provided for a uniform rate of 4 1/2 per cent interest on the bonus certificate loans. In almost everything that has been said about that rate, the veterans were assured that they would be getting the loans on especially liberal terms and that the prevailing interest rate was 6 per cent.

Interest Rate Varies

Regardless of the fact that the rate considerably exceeds those at which the government ordinarily lends and borrows money, it also appears that many veterans, under the new law, will be paying a higher interest of a lower rate of interest. Such borrowing veterans as live in the New York Federal Reserve district have been paying only 4 per cent interest. No veteran now has to pay 6 per cent. The rate in the Cleveland and Boston districts has been 5 per cent and in the other districts 5 1/2 per cent.

Interest rates have varied in the past as the Federal Reserve discount rate went up and down. And without the establishment of a uniform rate for all veterans they above as some of them have in the past. But the continued assertion that all veterans have been borrowing at 6 per cent and will now get the money 1 1/2 per cent cheaper is just one of those things that you hear from Washington.

A series of Franco-American fetes are being planned that will center around the replica of Mount Vernon, already erected in the Bois de Vincennes. A pageant, reproducing Lafayette's historical visit to Mount Vernon, will be staged with famous actors participating.

One of the participants will be Miss Ann Morgan Washington, daughter of Lawrence Washington, last of the name born of Mount Vernon, and a direct descendant of John Augustine Washington. She has been named by C. Bascom Sloop, American Commissioner, to superintend the furnishing of the United States building.

The aim of the pageant will be to emphasize the historic friendship that binds the French and American republics.

State Annual Ward Claims Cost Thousands

AUGUSTA, Me.—(AP)—The state of Maine must pay thousands of dollars this year to citizens who have suffered losses from the depredations of the state's fur-clad wards.

Dozens of claims have been entered against the state in the present sitting of the legislature by indignant farmers and others who have been the victims of some wild creature's claws or hoofs.

A Skowhegan man claimed $600 because his automobile was wrecked by a charging moose. Another charged a

Mayor Offered Chance For World Immortality

SAN FRANCISCO.—(AP)—Mayor Angelo Rossi has two known chances for immortality. One is to better the record of James Rolph, 19 years mayor; the other can be bought for $3,500 gold.

The latter offer was made in a letter from P. Henry Teng, president of the Sim Lim Institute, Shanghai, who wants to write a rhyming dictionary. In the book would appear a photograph and autobiography of the sponsor.

The rhyming dictionary, it was explained, will be remembered by the literati all over the world, thus bringing to Mayor Rossi immortality. The mayor is thinking it over.

What the NEW HUMIDOR PACK *means to Camel Smokers **

COMPARE a package of Camels with any other cigarette and note the difference in the technique of packing.

Note that Camels are completely enclosed in an outer transparent cover of moisture-proof cellophane and sealed air-tight at every point.

We call this outer shell the Humidor Pack. It differs from the ordinary cellophane pack and while it is egg-shell thin, it means a lot in terms of cigarette enjoyment.

It means, for instance, that evaporation is checkmated and that Salt Lake City can now have as good Camels as Winston-Salem.

While Camels are made of a blend of the choicest Turkish and mellowest domestic tobaccos, it is highly important, if you are to get full benefit of this quality, that these cigarettes come to you with their natural moisture content still intact.

The Humidor Pack insures that. It prevents the fine tobaccos of Camels from drying out and losing any of their delightful flavor.

Aside from cheap tobacco, two factors in a cigarette can mar the smoker's pleasure:

Fine particles of peppery dust if left in the tobacco by inefficient cleaning methods sting and irritate delicate throat membrane.

Dry tobacco, robbed of its natural moisture by scorching or by evaporation gives off a hot smoke that burns the throat with every inhalation.

We take every precaution against these factors here at Winston-Salem.

A special vacuum cleaning apparatus removes dust and now the new Humidor Pack prevents dryness.

Check the difference yourself

It is a very simple matter to check the difference between Humidor Packed Camels and other ordinary dry cigarettes.

First of all you can feel the difference as you roll the cigarettes between your fingers. Camels are full-bodied and pliable. A dry cigarette crumbles under pressure and sheds tobacco.

If you will hold a cigarette to each ear and roll them with your fingers you can actually hear the difference.

The real test of course is to smoke them. And here's where the new Humidor Pack proves a real blessing to the smoker.

As you inhale the cool, fragrant smoke from a Camel you get all the mildness and magic of the fine tobaccos of which it is blended.

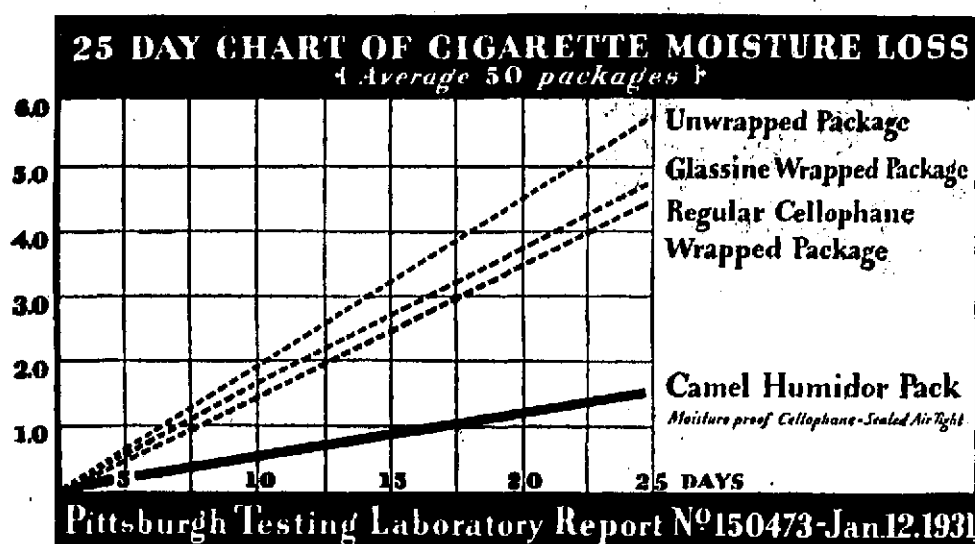

But when you draw in the hot smoke from a dried cigarette see how flat and brackish it is by comparison and how harsh it is to your throat.

If you are a regular Camel smoker you have already noticed what proper condition of the cigarette means.

But if you haven't tried Camels in the new Humidor Pack you have a new adventure with Lady Nicotine in store.

Switch your affections for just one day, then go back to your old love tomorrow if you can.
